CONDEMN TOWN'S WATER SUPPLY

Town Supply and Wells of Some Citizens Condemned at New Oxford on Account of Presence of Disease Germs. Take Precautions.

With the borough water supply condemned and some of the wells in the town also under the ban, New Oxford faces a rather unpleasant situation. Typhoid germs are reported to have been found and every precaution is being taken to avoid an outbreak such as that which created so much alarm there several years ago.

Three or four weeks ago the disease again made its appearance and several patients were under treatment by the physicians of the town. Samples of water from some of the wells were sent to Harrisburg for analysis and at least one of the cases traced to impure water secured from a well. A representative of the State Board of Health visited the town and the borough supply from the creek was condemned, the use of blue stone being recommended. This suggestion is not being followed at the present time, we are informed.

It is reported that a number of the wells in the town have become contaminated with disease germs and people generally are fearful of using either borough or well water. The wise ones are boiling all they use while many others have had their wells thoroughly cleaned in order to protect their own families.

The water from the creek, at the present time, in addition to its alleged dangerous character is so muddy that it is scarcely fit for any purpose whatever and the citizens of the lower end town are in quite a quandary. Fortunately there are enough good wells to supply the town until some other provision is made.

The borough at the present time is erecting a filter plant at the Little Conewago through which the water supply of the town will be taken, upon its completion which, it is expected, will require considerable time. The exact outlay is not definitely determined but it will likely be in the neighborhood of $12,000 or $15,000.

LOCUST IN SHOULDER

Insect Cut Out After Thirty-four Years.

Cutting into a lump which had formed in the shoulder of Joseph Ringer, of near Hagerstown, physicians were surprised to find a fully developed 17-year locust.

Ringer says he was stung by a locust in 1880, while clearing land. The pain was so great that he was rendered unconscious. In time, however, it disappeared, and he thought no more of it until a lump appeared on his shoulder in 1897. He was compelled to stop work on account of the pain, which, however, responded to treatment, and after several weeks the formation disappeared entirely, and he was not troubled with it again until recently, when the swelling reappeared, forming a lump as large as a hen's egg.

Ringer sought physicians, who applied hot poultices. A few hours later they made an incision and extracted a fully developed locust, which had, it is supposed, been incubating for the past 34 years. Ringer is now showing the insect as a curiosity.

FRANK DIXON AT THE CHAUTAUQUA

Tells Gettysburg how to Improve itself. Points out Many Defects. Musical Trio here Thursday. Notes of the Week.

If Frank Dixon would not stop for applause when he thinks he strikes an especially telling point, if he would forget his acquired mannerisms and objectionable poses, if he would discard that purposeless hiss at the end of every tenth sentence—if he would do these things and a few others—his lectures at Chautauqua would gain him scores of friends who now fail to listen to him the most pleasant way of spending an evening.

The management did Chautauqua a great service this year when they struck from their programs Dixon's tirade against the Constitution of the United States, with which he offended people all over the circuit last year, many in Gettysburg included. His "Square Deal" lecture, given here as a Sunday afternoon discourse, and calculated to arouse a general feeling of unrest among people not capable of picking out the good and forgetting the bad, is also a thing of the past. In their stead is provided, for the edification and benefit of both classes and masses, an assemblage of suggestions for town betterment.

Dr. Dixon occupied the greater portion of Thursday evening's Chautauqua session on this subject and, that he covered a great amount of ground in the hour or more allotted to him is unquestioned. Pointing out defects which are common in the great majority of towns, he did not fail to name a remedy for each and, if his suggestions were followed, Gettysburg would soon be a different sort of a place in which to live.

Scoring the checkerboard method of laying out a town, the placing of telephone and light poles on the streets, and ugly signs in front of business places, he urged the appointment of a town architect who would provide plans for the place's development for many years to come. Clean towns and clean business places, properly governed schools, an active board of health and a business like form of government were all suggestions made by Mr. Dixon. Inspected food and inspected meat shops and grocery stores were strongly urged together with many other things to make us live longer and more happily.

The lecture from start to finish contained one thought after another that could well be adopted in Gettysburg. The town's faults were almost all touched by practically a total stranger to the place. Some defects found in many towns and mentioned as possibly existing here, have happily been met in Gettysburg and local citizens quietly congratulated themselves that those things, at least, did not have to be a source of annoyance.

Dr. Dixon's lecture should do a great deal of good in every town that he visits. Whether it will, remains to be seen. The result lies principally on the question of whether people go to Chautauqua for improvement or entertainment. The well known lecturer's talk is a valuable feature of this year's Chautauqua program and it is to be regretted that he does not eliminate the objectionable features of his delivery.

The Chautauqua Trio furnished the musical features of the afternoon and evening sessions on Thursday. Their program in the afternoon was brief, for the heavy rain storm interfered and it was necessary to dismiss the audience to allow all to get home before the rain started its torrential downpour. In the evening they made up for this with a longer program and were well received.

This evening at 7:30, Imperial Russian Quartet; at 8:00, entertainment, Ross Crane, cartoonist and clay modeler; at 9:30, motion pictures.

Saturday afternoon: 2:30, series lecture; 3:15, concert, the Original Strollers Quartet; 3:45, drama, "Rada", the College Players.

Chautauqua Notes
In censuring the audience for talking during "performances" Chautauqua people might reflect that the more interesting the attraction the less talking there will be.

Ticket holders from the county were noticeably absent Thursday night, bad roads and lowering skies keeping them at home.

The juniors are busy at it. If you have the time, spend an hour or two some morning watching the fun.

Just why will automobile owners try out their engines within twenty feet of the Chautauqua tent?

SLIGHT INJURY CAUSE OF DEATH

Miss Mary Lower, of Table Rock, Dies at York after an Operation for Blood Poisoning. Cut Thumb Became Infected.

From an infection which followed cutting her thumb with a paring knife and then getting a fish bone into the open wound, Miss Mary Lower, of Table Rock, died at Dr. E. W. Meisenholder's hospital in York Thursday afternoon at 3:25 o'clock. She was 36 years of age. The injuries which caused her death occurred more than a week ago.

Miss Lower's removal to the hospital was recommended Wednesday evening after a consultation by Dr. Meisenholder with her local physician and on Thursday morning she was taken to York by automobile. The operation was performed at eleven o'clock, the infected arm being opened at a number of places and thoroughly drained.

The operation was apparently a success and some time afterward she lapsed into a peaceful rest. About three o'clock her condition suddenly became very much worse and death occurred in a few minutes. The infection had evidently spread to many portions of her body, the direct cause of her death being ascribed to its reaching the brain.

Miss Lower was well known in the vicinity in which she lived. She was a daughter of Henry R. and Maria (Weaver) Lower, both of whom are dead. She leaves two brothers, Elson G. Lower, of Table Rock, and Harry W. Lower, of Aspers. She also leaves an uncle, Conrad A. Lower, who made his home with her.

Funeral Monday morning, meeting at the house at ten o'clock. Services and interment at Bender's Church, conducted by Rev. T. C. Hesson.

VISITORS COMING

Soldiers' Orphans and Auto Run Due for Visit here.

On August 28 the graduates of the various soldiers' orphans' schools in the State will come to Gettysburg as the third day of their convention in Harrisburg. They are known as "Sixteeners" from the fact that sixteen was the age at which soldiers' orphans were formerly dismissed from the various institutions.

A party of about thirty from York, Lynn, Delaware, is scheduled to spend Sunday here. They will come in a dozen Stanley Steamers Saturday evening.

BASE BALL NEWS

Rain Compelled Postponement of Thursday's Game with Hanover.

On account of rain the game between Gettysburg and Hanover scheduled for Thursday afternoon was postponed indefinitely. Dr. Granville has repeated his request for no betting, made at the time of the first Hanover game a week or more ago. The next game of the series will be played at Hanover on Thursday, July 23. The fourth game will be played two days later on Nixon Field. Next Wednesday the Salad Birds, of Carlisle, are due for a game here.

KILLED ON TRACK AT MT. HOLLY INN

Distressing Accident at Nearby Resort when Woman is Instantly Killed by Car. Walking on Track. View Hidden by Parasol.

While walking along the trolley tracks between the Mt. Holly Park and the Holly Inn Thursday afternoon, Mrs. W. G. Appleton, of Dubbs Falls, New York, was struck by a car going toward Carlisle and instantly killed.

She was the mother of the Rev. Dr. Floyd Appleton, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church at Harrisburg. The woman, with her husband and son, the Rev. Dr. Appleton, has been spending some time at the Inn, but she was alone when the accident occurred.

The accident took place about 3:30 o'clock on a dangerous curve. It is said Mrs. Appleton was walking on the track and the car was running in the same direction. She was hidden by the curve and the car was upon her before the motorman could bring his car to a stop.

Her head was badly cut, one leg was broken and lacerated, and she sustained a number of bruises about the body.

George Meals, the motorman, said he was rounding the curve and blew the whistle before he saw the woman. She carried a parasol and this is believed to have deadened the sound.

ABBOTTSTOWN

Abbottstown—Jacob Lochman, of Berwick township, and Miss Elizabeth Lochman, of this place, were married Saturday evening at the Lutheran parsonage, by Rev. F. C. Sternat.

Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel Arendt, Nashville, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. N. Berkheimer on Sunday.

The Lutheran Sunday School picnic Saturday was largely attended and was socially and financially successful. Misses Helen and Anna Baker, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Baker, gave a party to a number of their young friends Friday evening. Upwards of 50 youngsters participated in the games and enjoyments of the evening.

John W. Grim with his New Peerless Geiser separator is very busy threshing, and he reports the yield large. He threshed 2½ acres wheat for Dr. W. F. Hollinger, yielded 80 bushels; S. K. Sowers, one fourth acre rye 14 bushels, and Samuel Meckley, 4 acres wheat, 133 bushels.

SUNDAY HOUSE SALE

Hotel at East Berlin Offered at Public Sale.

The Sunday House at East Berlin, one of the best known hotels in that section of the county, was offered at public sale this afternoon. At the time of going to press the bid was $6500 and the sale had not yet been completed. The property was offered for sale in its entirety including the good will and fixtures. William Kunkle has been the proprietor for the past seven months. There is some doubt about the property being finally sold at the afternoon sale.

U.S. TO RECOGNIZE PEACEFUL CHANGE

Mexican Rebels Must Halt Armed Campaign.

VILLA'S ATTITUDE FEARED

Carvajal Sends Commission to Negotiate Shift With Rebels and Get Guarantee of Safety For All.

Washington, July 17.—The United States instructed John R. Sillman, American consul at Saltillo, to inform General Carranza that if he arrives at a peaceful agreement with the Carrvajal government for the transfer of power at Mexico City, recognition will be extended to the resultant administration.

Should Carranza refuse to complete the settlement of the internal conflict by diplomatic means and insist on a forcible entry into Mexico City, recognition will be deferred until there is a legal election. American forces, according to present plans, will not be withdrawn from Vera Cruz until a government is recognized.

This determination was reached by President Wilson and Secretary Bryan after the viewpoint of the South American mediators was laid before them. Under the terms of a protocol signed at Niagara Falls, the United States, Argentina, Brazil and Chile went on record promising recognition to the government set up by any agreement between the two Mexican factions. To vitalize that protocol the Washington government and the mediators now are bending their efforts.

The first move toward effecting a transfer of government to the Constitutionalists already has been taken by Provisional President Carrvajal. The three peace commissioners—on their way to confer with Carranza or his division commander—General Obregon, are thoroughly Constitutionalists in their political beliefs and were conspicuous members of the Maderista party. They also are close personal friends of Carrvajal. He has sent them to confer with the Constitutionalists chief, because he believes they can obtain satisfactory terms for the transition of the government.

The only cloud on the horizon of peace in Mexico was the uncertainty about the attitude of General Villa. Information from reliable sources was that he is concentrating his forces in Chihuahua and northern Mexico so as to make vigorous demands on Carranza. It was said when the conference of generals is called at Mexico City after General Carranza enters there, Villa adherents may attempt to substitute another first chief for Carranza. Constitutionalists with Carranza sympathies make no secret of the fact that they are apprehensive of Villa's attitude.

For that reason they are working hard to obtain recognition for Carranza's government so that the embargo on arms and munitions which has been placed on the rebels and Carranza's revolution is shipped in the incident stage.

HUERTA IN FLIGHT

Former Dictator Believed to Be on His Way to Europe.

Mexico City, July 17.—At last Victoriano Huerta has surrendered control of the provisional presidency of Mexico.

After his stormy career in the executive chair, he is in flight and is believed to be on his way to Europe. Francisco Carrvajal, whom Huerta recently appointed as minister of foreign relations, has been declared provisional president by congress and is in charge of the remnant left of the federal government.

Already steps have been taken to bring internal peace, which means the surrender of control to the Constitutionalists on the best terms that may be obtained.

The change in government has been calmly received by the populace. Beside a demonstration made in honor of President Carrvajal when he was leaving the chamber of deputies building after taking the oath of office, no other outbursts of importance have occurred. There were a few shouts in the streets of "Down with Huerta!" and "Viva Carranza!" but the police promptly stopped all such demonstrations.

The designation of Carrvajal for the provisional presidency has been well received throughout the part of the republic under Federal control. The fact that the new president is a civilian contributed to win for him the sympathies of the Mexican people, who appear to have become tired of military rule.

A number of revolutionary troops occupy a position at Tulyahualco, a village not far from the capital, but no attempt has been made by them to enter Mexico City, as they have been ordered by the northern leaders to suspend all operations.

May Start New Revolt.

San Antonio, July 17.—Reports that a junta was being formed in El Paso in the interests of Felix Diaz were being discussed unofficially by army oficers here.

The plan, it was said, was to start a counter revolution against Carranza and Villa and obtain the aid of Huerta irregulars.

MAY AVERT BIG RAILROAD STRIKE

Union Asked For Detailed Statement of Demands.

Chicago, July 17.—A step toward the resumption of negotiations between the 25,000 men and 100 miles of track was taken by the conference committee of the latter in a letter asking for a definite statement of the propositions supported by the union.

The letter was addressed to W. S. Stone, grand chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and W. S. Carter, the head of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers, and was in response to the formal notification of the result of the vote in which nearly all the employees favored a strike.

The request of the managers' committee was in the following words: "Please advise this committee of the specific propositions you are now supporting under the authority given you by this strike vote and which we may understand to be the basis of settlement by which a strike may be averted."

The letter was signed by A. W. Trenholm, chairman of the managers' committee and general manager of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha railway.

It was expected that the union officials would consider the communication of the managers' committee at a meeting held later before drafting a reply.

WILSON INSISTS JONES BE NAMED

No Let Up in Fight to Force Confirmation.

ENDORSED BY BANKERS

The Vote on Members of Federal Reserve Board Will Probably Come Next Week.

Washington, July 17.—There was no let up in President Wilson's fight for the confirmation of Thomas D. Jones, of Chicago, for the federal reserve board.

Intimations that the nomination might be withdrawn from the senate were vigorously denied by White House officials who thought the administration supporters had increased in numbers.

Opponents of the confirmation were confident they could beat it; the administration still was hopeful of victory, though by a slender majority.

The fight took on a new turn when the administration supporters began laying plans to delay the vote and thus gain time to strengthen their position. It looks as though the test may not come before next week.

That the administration is preparing for a finish fight is indicated by a report that the president has summoned Senator Owen, of Oklahoma, and Senator Fletcher, of Florida, to return to Washington immediately. It is the hope of the administration leaders that if Mr. Owen can reach Washington in time for the final vote he can swing at least five votes to the president.

Senator Weeks, of Massachusetts, has issued a formal statement summarizing his reasons for opposing the confirmation of Mr. Jones. Senator Weeks drew attention to the fact that the International Harvester company, in which Mr. Jones is a director and stockholder, is an alleged violator of the law, and that if one director be guilty of wrongdoing, all are equally guilty.

A letter endorsing Mr. Jones, signed by twenty-two large business concerns in Chicago, was made public at the White House.

Failure of the senate to confirm Jones and Paul M. Warburg as members of the reserve board within the next week may lead to complications which will seriously interfere with the final preparation for launching the new banking system. The currency act speaks of the reserve board as a whole and bestows no powers on different individuals on that board.

The question has been raised as to whether the three members of the board confirmed by the senate have authority to go ahead with the work of setting the bank machinery in motion, or whether they must wait for the confirmation of the other two members.

It has been the opinion in some quarters that if the three members confirmed act in concert with Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo and Comptroller of the Currency Williams there can be little question of the legality of their decisions.

HAITIEN REBELS WIN

Victors in Battle on Road to Milt. Dominican Rebels Also Successful.

Washington, July 17.—Haitian rebels were victors in a battle on the road from Cape Haitien to Milt, according to dispatches from Captain Russell on board the South Carolina. A general attack was planned to drive the rebels from the plains.

The Dominican revolutionists also won a victory, capturing Banl, a suburb of San Domingo City, according to a report to the navy department from Captain Carter, of the gunboat Castine.

Residents in San Domingo City are fearful that the revolutionists will break through the Federal lines and commit excesses.

Bloomerless Batting Suits Barred.

Atlantic City, July 17.—Bloomerless bathing suits were placed under the ban by Safety Director William Bartlett as the result of the appearance of Miss Java Mullen on the strand off Georgia avenue in that sort of attire. ## METHODIST COLLEGE GETS A MILLION Gift to New Church Institution at Atlanta.

Atlanta, Ga., July 17.—Atlanta was selected as the location for the university to be established east of the Mississippi river by the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at a meeting in this city of the education commission appointed by the last general conference to choose a site.

The university to be established by the church west of the Mississippi already has been awarded to Dallas, Texas.

Announcement by Bishop Warren A. Candler, chairman of the commission, that Atlanta had been selected was immediately followed by official confirmation of the report that $1,000,000 had been given to the new university by Asa G. Candler, of Atlanta, brother of the bishop.

It was stated on reliable authority that the university as contemplated will represent an investment of $5,000,000. It is expected that work on the buildings will be started before next winter.

2000 at Work on Roads.

Harrisburg, Pa., July 17.—Reports received at the state highway department showed that the number of men at work on state highway repairs was close to 2000, and that efforts were being made to get the lines in good shape for travel in the vicinity of all county seats. Between 500 and 1000 road drags are in service or are to be put to work before the end of the week.

TWO BEARS FIGHT TO DEATH

Huge Grizzly and a Black Member of Bruin Family Battle to Finish in Denver Park.

Denver.—A huge male "grizzly" and a black bear cub fought a finish fight at City Park zoo. The black bear, one of a den of five, is dead. Curiosity and the stimulus of a crisp spring morning are responsible.

The bear went in quest of adventure. He sniffed the air, shook himself and placed a paw upon the first crosspiece of the iron grating which separated his pen from the one adjoining, in which the grizzly, the largest in the zoo, was confined.

The visiting Bruin looked inquisitively toward the top and then commenced to mount, stopping at every round to regard inquiringly the four black bears which he had left below. From the other side of the grating the grizzly regarded the approach with disapproval.

The bear reached the top and paused to take account of his exploit with conscious satisfaction. Then he lost his balance and a moment later fell to the cement floor of the grizzly's preserve.

When the keepers arrived later the black bear was dead.

Precaution.

During the preparation for battle Pat emerged from his tent wearing his uniform hind side before. This soon attracted the attention of his superior officer, who demanded an explanation. Pat scratched his head and seemed loath to comply, but finally replied, with a sheepish grin: "Well, begorra, Oi thot if Oi wore it this way, thin when Oi had to retreat Oi wouldn't get shot in the back."—Life.

How to Plaster.

To repair holes or cracks in walls, secure some fresh mortar. Clean out the holes with a brush, remove all loose plaster thoroughly, wet the slats and old plaster with a sponge, fill up the hole or cracks with fresh mortar, pat down even. In a few hours go over again with knife or trowel. Close holes in woodwork with a paste made of glue and fine sawdust.

Wallingford In His Prime

By GEORGE RANDOLPH CHESTER

Copyright, 1913, by the Bobbs-Merrill Co.

SYNOPSIS

J. Rufus Wallingford, skillful manipulator of other people's money for his own benefit, meets Benson Falls, idle son of a railroad president, and three equally idle friends.

Wallingford agrees to manage a company to market Benson Falls' patented portable bungalow after Falls drops the fact that his father is soon to open a new road through land once obtained from Wallingford at the latter's great financial loss.

Wallingford instructs his pal, Blackie Daw, to act as an accomplice in a scheme to bleed the four young men through fake orders for the portable house.

Daw, representing himself as three buyers, orders several hundred houses. Wallingford gets $15,000 cash from the rich quartet for his own patents on the company's output and threatens injunction suits against the company for infringement of other patents.

The company breaks up, and Wallingford and Daw retain 25 portable houses. Wallingford blocks Benson Falls' railroad scheme and is bought off for $1,500. Wallingford starts on another adventure, with his handy boy, Toad Jessup.

Wallingford buys stock in the Kimberly mine, promoted and operated by the Douglass brothers, and starts a big boom at Douglassville. Meanwhile one of the brothers is trying to sell Blackie Daw Kimberly stock in New York.

Big Bill Sammet is hooted down when he reveals before a Douglassville crowd Wallingford's part in the Kimberly scheme. Wallingford sees how the Douglass brothers stoke men out of camp who apply for jobs and recognize the Douglass brothers as mine fakers.

Wallingford hires the stoned men as a strong arm gang. He increases his popularity by giving a library to the mining camp. Blackie Daw in New York fails for some of the Kimberly mining stock.

Wallingford's paid job hunters even up past scores by cleaning up the Douglass brothers and their strong arm leader. Wallingford stalls off angry stockholders in the camp.

Wallingford and Blackie Daw skip the camp under fire, but clean up $10,000 on houses and lots. Still, the Douglass brothers, they meet Mr. Dillon of the Dillon Department Store company.

Mrs. Wallingford and Mrs. Daw train Melissa Tripp as dancing star for "The Lame's Gait." The show is to be given at the Avon theater.

Wallingford and Daw get interested in the event and Wallingford sees a way to bleed Dillon. Preparations for the show continue, much to the distress of the women over the amateurishness of Melissa Tripp.

The show proves a big hit through the efforts of Blackie Daw, who makes a principal part at a moment's notice.

Wallingford gets an option on the Avon theater, to clean up $100,000 out of it by holding up Dillon, who wants it for business extension. Wallingford and Daw hear political burglars are planning to buy an old courthouse cheap and sell it for a beer garden site.

Wallingford arranges to buy the courthouse in for the grafters at a commission. Blackie Daw goes to church.

Blackie, enthusiastic over his reception at church, aids in raising a fund to pay the courthouse to erect the gang. Wallingford enters his bid.

Wallingford is awarded the courthouse and quickly transfers it to the church, thus doubling crossing the grafters and getting away with his commission. On a new money market scheme, E. P. Steele, one of his dupes at Ciderburg, is duped.

Wallingford accepts $5,000 from Steele and returns to Ciderburg to set the man up in an honest business despite the fact that Wallingford had done the town on the Bang Sun Engine scheme.

Wallingford perpetrates an advertising dodge on the city in behalf of Kreiger's department store and bleeds Kreiger's rivals, newspaper owners, for libel.

In search of new easy money Wallingford deposits $25,000 in one of Prize City's banks and orders members of the Commercial club an amusement park company to buy Dad Thompson's farm.

CHAPTER XXI.

Strictly Temperance.

BEFORE J. Rufus Wallingford arrived in Prize City he spent a solid hour in searching through his valuable collection of carefully exchanged business cards. His search was rewarded by the pasteboard of "Thomas J. Hammond, Books and Stationery, 346 Broadway, Prize City, Fine Printing and Engraving a Specialty." Mr. Wallingford studied the reverse of the card more earnestly than he did the obverse. Here was microscopically written in ink:

May, 1910 New York Central. Little peacock, with a hooked nose and deep creases. Business fuser. Rated 112 on Commercial club. Wife paints miniatures. Three boys. Oldest, Harry, in college.

Mr. Wallingford spent some fifteen minutes in recalling the brow creased countenance of Mr. Hammond; then he strolled over to 346 Broadway and called upon the gentleman. Mr. Hammond, who sat at a desk rattled off in the middle of a very neatly kept shop, looked up with frowning abstraction, as Mr. Wallingford cheerily greeted him, and the dim light of cold recognition shone in his eyes.

"I'm sorry I can't quite place you," he confessed and looked back, with a frown, at a clerk who was allowing a lady to go out without having purchased anything.

Mr. Wallingford's expression of cheerful confidence faded as he were much disappointed in not being remembered. "I recall you perfectly," he said. "We had a delightful conversation in the buffet car of a New York Central flier one morning last May from Albany to Forty-second street."

"Oh, yes," grudgingly admitted Mr. Hammond, with a slight twitching of his creases. "Are you in the city on business?"

"I'm not sure yet," returned Wallingford, chuckling; and, hearing the chuckle, Mr. Hammond remembered that Wallingford had been the most delightful traveling companion he had ever met. "It depends on what business opportunities the city has to offer."

me. First of all, however, I'd like to know something about your local banks."

"All our banks are very good," he stated coolly, with his eager eye roving from customer to customer.

"Oh, well, if there's no choice I may as well take the nearest one to the Wallingford," accepted Wallingford, naming his hotel. "I feel a little cautious about it because I wish to open an account with rather a good sized check—$75,000, to be more exact."

"Indeed!" exclaimed Mr. Hammond, with an instant change of manner. "I wouldn't go to the Farmers and Traders in your case, Mr. Wallingford. I think I should go to the Broadway National." He paused a moment to consider. Depositing a $75,000 check for collection, with a view to opening an account, sounded very good. He owned stock in the Broadway National. Still, one never could tell. "Don't say I sent you," he warned. "I can't afford to show favoritism."

"Thanks," said Wallingford gratefully. "I quite understand. By the way, how is your son Harry coming on at college?"

"Fine!" declared Mr. Hammond with instant responsiveness, and for the first time he really smiled. "I didn't imagine you'd remember about him." "I could scarcely forget him," replied Wallingford convincingly. "You showed me his photograph, you know. It was the best portrait of a fine, handsome man, mainly had I ever seen. He seemed a trifle delicate, though. How is his health now?"

"Couldn't be better," returned Mr. Hammond. "I must show you a picture of him taken last fall," and he opened a drawer of his desk. "Sit down, Mr. Wallingford," and he pushed forward a big leather chair. "Have a cigar. Here is that new photograph."

Wallingford accepted the cigar and the picture with equal apparent pleasure, and he surveyed the latter long and earnestly.

"You're a right to be very proud of that!" he observed with appropriate enthusiasm. "I have a boy growing up, and if he only looks like this, at the same age, I shall be highly satisfied. I suppose he gets his splendid eyes from his mother. They indicate a keen artistic temperament. Is this one of Mrs. Hammond's miniatures?" and he bent forward eagerly to inspect a pasty portrait of a baby, framed in gold filigree.

"That's my youngest," said Mr. Hammond proudly. "I had it displayed at the national miniaturists' exhibit, but if I had only known that personal influence was the leading factor in awarding the prizes I would have saved Mrs. Hammond the humiliation. You must have a very good memory Mr. Wallingford, to recollect about my wife being an artist. How long shall you be in the city?"

"It depends upon local financial conditions. How are they?"

"Not the best in the world," replied Mr. Hammond, with an instant lugubrious expression. "The new traction line, which was to have brought the farmers in to trade, only takes our own people away to spend their money, especially in the summer. They have amusement parks in Riverton and Capitola. Every time our mechanics have a half holiday or take one they go out of town to ride on the roller coasters and come home with their arms full of goods that should have been bought at home."

"That's bad," declared Wallingford genuinely interested. "What you apparently need is an amusement park bigger and better than those at Riverton and Capitola."

"We've often discussed it over at the Commercial club," stated Hammond with a worried air, "but no one seems to take an active hold of the problem. We've even urged it as a club measure."

and might have done something in that way if the Business Men's club had joined in the movement."

"Is that club still retarding progress in Prize City?" inquired Wallingford, remembering Hammond's bitter partisanship.

"Still blocking the way." And a frown of anger this time condensed Hammond's creases.

"Such a condition is fatal to advancement," announced Wallingford sympathetically, and he arose. "Well, I must trot on over to the Broadway National." He picked up the photograph on the desk and examined it anew.

with admiration fairly radiating from his big pink face. "By George, that's a handsome boy!" he exclaimed.

Mr. Hammond reached for his hat. "I think I have time to go over to the bank with you and introduce you to the president," he said.

On Friday Mr. Hammond, by his right as a stockholder, learned that Mr. Wallingford's check had proved thoroughly good and that the stranger now had $75,000 regular dollars in the Broadway National, so that night, which was the club's official social evening, he made Mr. Wallingford his guest at the Commercial club and gave him a two weeks' card, which privileged him to come up to the rooms whenever he chose and buy whatever he liked and pay cash for it.

On the way up to the club Mr. Hammond stopped in at a grocery store and bought a pound of sugar and a Jovial wink for $1.50. He explained this purchase up in the club, in a little room full of lockers.

"You see, we don't have a bar in the Commercial club, on account of the strong temperance element in this town," he stated, as he took a self-pulling corker from its nail by the door, "and we have a strict bylaw which says that no liquors shall be brought into the rooms, so we all bring in sugar, or tea, or coffee, or whatever we like," and with a juvenile grin that struggled oddly with his perpetually creased forehead, he opened his package of sugar and drew the cork whereupon he offered Wallingford a water glass to drink from.

Two other gentlemen, hatless and coatless, and with billiard sticks in their hands, walked into the grocery room, one of them laughing and the other one trying to laugh. The one who was trying to laugh took a key from his pocket, opened his locker and produced a bottle, holding it sudly up to the light.

"Third straight chocolate drop Lybarger's lost tonight, Hammond," explained the laughing one.

Mr. Woods and Mr. Lybarger, the former a fat young man with an intricately veined face, and the latter a phenomically lean man with painfully larb hair and complexion, were pleased to welcome the eastern capitalist into their midst and Mr. Hammond, under cover of the noise of the running water at the sink, where goblets were rinsed, informed fat Mr. Woods:

"Has seventy-five thousand in the Broadway National, real money?"

"Mr. Wallingford," invited Mr. Woods, "won't you try some of my chewing gum?" And he produced a bottle from his own locker. "This is some very special chewing gum. Friend of mine in Kentucky sent it to me twenty-five years old."

Others came in, and Wallingford was introduced to them, and they conducted him hospitably to the reading room. By the time he had sat in his chair every man in the Commercial club knew that he had $75,000 on deposit at the Broadway National! He could hear them telling it to one another and he enjoyed himself very much.

Mr. Hammond was very proud of his friend Wallingford as the evening wore on. He was a good story teller and he looked so jovial that by the time he had told three or four good ones his auditors laughed every time he said anything at all. Finally, hoary headed Dan Blessus, who ran a furniture factory on the profit sharing plan with a daily chapel attachment, and obtained the manufacture of his output cheaper than any of his competitors, asked Wallingford the question that had been sprouting at the root of every man's tongue for the last half hour.

"If it were not presuming too far," he suggested, "I'd like to ask you what your own line might be, but I'm afraid to do so."

"I'll save you the embarrassment of asking," returned Wallingford cheerfully. "I am an industrial physician."

"And surgeon?" inquired fat Mr. Woods, whose sense of the ridiculous was far keener than his sense of propriety.

There was a laugh upon this, and Wallingford laughed the loudest; then he slipped quite naturally back into the serious conversation upon which he had started.

"Aside from the fancy language," he stated, "I have made it my work to find the commercial needs of one city after another. I study each case as carefully as if I were a physician or an engineer. Sometimes I find that a city has undeveloped natural resources such as a bed of suitable clay for making pottery. In that case I would promote a pottery, finance it, even invest my own money if necessary, put it upon a paying basis, sell out my interest, including the modest amount of stock given me for my services in promotion, and go elsewhere. Every city is more or less commercially incomplete and has one crying need."

The next question was so natural that six people asked it at once. "What does Prize City need?" they chorused.

"An amusement park," replied Wallingford promptly.

He was told that the Commercial club had often talked this over.

"That's where you need me," Wallingford laughingly informed them. "You do nothing but talk, largely because you're absorbed in your own business affairs. People need amusement more than they need anything else. What amusement do you give them in the summer? I'll tell you. On Saturday nights you let them come down and walk around and around Monument square and when their legs get tired they can carry the children home. It's no wonder they go to Riverton and Capitola to ride on the roller coasters, as our friend Hammond puts it. Incidentally, while they're there, they buy dry goods, clothing, groceries, shoes and millinery. You must reverse those conditions."

"Now is the time for action," he said. "Let us make this a private enterprise on a good, sound, sensible basis, but under Commercial club auspices. Somebody appoint a chairman and let's organize."

With tumultuous fervor they nominated J. Rufus Wallingford, but he firmly declined the offer and put his happy friend, Hammond, in the chair. Before the meeting broke up the Prize City Amusement Park company had been fully organized, a committee had been appointed to go out with Wal-

Medical Advertising LADIES! Darken Your Gray Hair

Use Grandma's Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe and No-body will know.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and abundant. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is messy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get this famous old recipe which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, feverish, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and abundant.

CARPENTIER WINS ON FOUL

Ce's Decision Over Smith in the Sixth Round.

HOOTED AS HE LEFT RING

American Knocked Frenchman Down and Then Hit Him While on the Floor.

London, July 17.—Georges Carpentier, the heavyweight champion of France and Europe, defeated Gunboat Smith, of Philadelphia, U. S. A., on a foul in the sixth round of a scheduled twenty-round fight.

Smith struck Carpentier while he was lying prostrate after being knocked down, and the contest was awarded to the Frenchman on a foul.

The contest was marked by frequent foul blows, for which both men were warned, but Smith was the worst offender.

In the sixth round the American hit Carpentier on the jaw and Frenchman fell to his knees, stooping low. Smith struck Carpentier in the back of the neck.

A great outcry followed, the friends and supporters of Carpentier hooting the American. Spectators and the frantic French friends of Carpentier dashed into the ring and appealed to Referee Corri for a decision in favor of the Frenchman.

Carpentier held his head apparently in great pain, though it seemed that Smith's blow hardly touched him. The Frenchman's second took him to his corner while the crowd hooted loudly. The referee decided Carpentier had won. Smith remained in the ring. He and his seconds protested against the decision.

Smith surprised the spectators by carrying the fight to the Frenchman, who could not get his bearings. Smith slammed a hard one on the body and then was warned for hitting low. After getting away from a dangerous uppercut Smith drove a right to the ribs and Carpentier backed away until he could get his breath.

In the second round Carpentier began to use his speed and foot work and he made Smith miss many of his punches. The American continually let go hard swings, but the Frenchman kept out of danger and had a lead on the round.

The referee warned Smith again in the third round for hitting low, and Carpentier kept stabbing away at the face with his left hand.

It was apparent early in the fight that the Frenchman was much the faster, but he had great respect for his opponent's punches.

The fourth round saw some fierce fighting, and just before the gong rang Carpentier floored Smith with a smash to the jaw and the bell rang for the end of the round before Smith got to his feet. Smith was badly shaken up by the punch and the minute's rest did him a lot of good.

The fifth round was even, and the end came in the sixth.

Sandwiched in the jostling mob of French and American and British followers of the manly art were women and clergymen. Many noblemen, including a member of the royal family, were present.

WILSON HAS INDIGESTION

Attack Follows Anniversary Dinner Given Secretary Lane.

Washington, July 17.—President Wilson, suffering from an attack of indigestion which followed Secretary Lane's fifteenth anniversary dinner, was confined to his room.

It was said that he was better, but that all engagements probably would be canceled. It was thought best to keep him quiet.

The president's illness was complicated by a cold in his stomach. He has been greatly annoyed by the heat recently, but refuses to leave Washington as long as congress is at work on the anti-trust bills.

SAY BRYAN WILL MOVE SOUTH

Asheville, N. C., Residents Assert He Has Sold Lincoln Home.

Raleigh, N. C., July 17.—Secretary of State Bryan will live in North Carolina permanently, according to an Asheville report. He has sold his Lincoln, Neb., home, it is said.

Fred Seeley, a publisher, gave Mr. Bryan a lot, according to Asheville visitors, and Bryan will come to North Carolina after his service with the administration ends.

North Carolina has always voted strongly for Mr. Bryan, and it is said that the state's friendship for him has much to do with his determination to move to Raleigh.

Broker Found Dead in Bed.

New York, July 17.—George H. Jones, seventy years old, said to be a Philadelphia stock broker, was found dead in bed at the Mills hotel here. A daughter lives at 3265 Woodland avenue, Philadelphia.

Varied Menu Fatal.

Trenton, N. J., July 17.—Mrs. Mary Harmon, of Hamilton avenue, this city, died from the effects of eating ice cream, bananas and watermelon at a party. The combination brought on an attack of acute indigestion.

HUERTA'S DAUGHTERS.

Pretty Girls With Their Mother Flee to Vera Cruz.

The family of Dictator Huerta has fled Mexico City for Vera Cruz, and will sail to some foreign port from that city. They are the dictator's two pretty daughters, who, with their mother and others, left in a closely guarded special train. There is no doubt but that they will be followed by the dictator. These girls are (top) Luz, aged eighteen, who recently married a colonel in the Mexican army, and (below) Senora, age sixteen.

MRS. CARMAN INDICTED BY GRAND JURY

Will be Released Under Bail Pending Trial.

Freeport, L. I., July 17.—Mrs. Florence Carman was indicted for manslaughter in the first degree by the Nassau county grand jury sitting at Mineola. The jury reached a decision after two hours' deliberation.

Mrs. Carman will be arraigned at once and will plead not guilty. Her trial will be fixed for the September sitting of the supreme court at Mineola. Her counsel will straightway ask for her liberty under bail, and unless present indications miscarry the request will be granted and bill will be fixed at something not exceeding $15,000.

Manslaughter in the first degree is punishable by imprisonment for a term of not exceeding twenty years. It will be possible, however, for the jury that tries her to bring in a verdict of manslaughter in the second degree. Such a crime is punishable by imprisonment for a term not exceeding fifteen years or a fine not exceeding $1000.

So it is pretty certain that Mrs. Carman will be back in her home by this evening and to all intents and purposes a free woman. The indictment has not ruffled her composure any more than did the ordeal of testifying at the coroner's inquest.

AWARDS THAW $160,000

Court in Deciding Case Also Raps Testimony of Alienists.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 17.—Alienists' testimony that Harry K. Thaw's mental condition is such as to "make it unwise to commit any very large sums of money into his personal charge," brought out the retort from Judge James Over, in the orphans' court, that "this may be said of many persons to whom distribution is made in this court of large sums of money," and as a result the Matteawan fugitive won what is held to be his biggest victory since his fight began to establish that he is sane.

Thaw was awarded $160,773.17 income and interest of a legacy from the estate of his father, William Thaw, held by the Fidelity Title and Trust company.

Two Men in Boat Shot.

Wheeling, W. Va., July 17.—William Arn and Harry Purdy, the latter a city councilman of Moundsville, about twelve miles below here, were shot and instantly killed while they were riding in a motor boat on the Ohio river. The murderer fired from the West Virginia shore and then escaped in a stolen motor boat to the Ohio side. He is being pursued by a posse.

KEEPING INSECTS DOWN.

Good Farming Methods Necessary to Entire Success of Spraying.

The vast amount of insect injury done to garden and truck crops throughout the United States can be greatly lessened, but not entirely controlled, by intelligent spraying. In order to make the success of spraying methods complete they must be supplemented by good farming methods. It is estimated that the value of truck crops in the United States is $300,000,000 annually. It is also estimated that fully 20 per cent of this value is destroyed by insect ravages. This gives the enormous sum of $60,000,000 sacrificed annually to the greedy pests that infest our truck and garden patches.

While there are scores of kinds of insects that do more or less damage to these crops, the number of insects that are serious pests in any one community is usually somewhat limited. This number can be still further reduced and made less harmful to the crops by learning their general life history and their feeding habits and then planning the planting and cultivation of crops in such a way as to thwart their fiercest attacks.

"A knowledge of the insects' life history and general habits becomes an essential part of the education of successful growers," says Professor A. L. Lovett, research assistant entomologist at the Oregon Agricultural college. "With this knowledge growers may look ahead and so manage their land and crops so as to avoid the most serious losses. The cultural system involves careful rotation of crops, fall, winter and spring plowing, clean cultivation, general cleaning up of roadways, fence corners and trash about the field, the most opportune time of planting, the proper use of fertilizers, the use of truck crops and the frequent examination of young plants for insect pests.

"The use of insecticides also is essential to the highest production of first class truck and garden crops. While spraying unaided by cultural methods is more or less inefficient, when practiced in connection with them it will reduce insect injury almost to negligible amount.

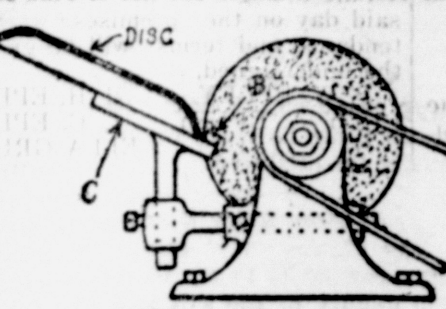

"Another feature of insect control by natural methods is the encouragement of birds and beneficial insects. Practically every bird is good for from 100 to 500 insects per day when insects are plentiful. Knowing this, no truckster or gardener will kill them or drive them away. It is especially detrimental to crops in small lots and in the city, because when these guardians of the crops are driven away there are few or none others to take their place.

"Having done all these things that are helpful to farming and harmful to insects, intelligent spraying will practically complete the destruction of the insects and end the serious injury that they do to the crops."

Serviceable Disk Grinder.

The accompanying cut shows a good, cheap, serviceable disk grinder. The grinder consists of a small emery wheel stand, which may be purchased for a few dollars; an emery wheel eight inches in diameter and one inch wide and a special rest, marked C.

When purchasing a grinding wheel be sure to tell the dealer for what the wheel is to be used. Wheels vary in grit and hardness, and a wheel suitable for one class of work may be a failure on other work. As a rule, the harder the material to be ground the softer the wheel to be used. Other materials have largely taken the place of emery for making grinding wheels.

Solomon and the Clover.

No one was able to ask King Solomon a question that he could not answer in his time. He knew much about animals, trees, plants, fruits, birds and had a great store of information.

The queen of Sheba once thought she would catch him in this way. It is said: She had a bunch of wax clover blossoms and leaves made, and when they were put near the real flowers she herself could not tell them apart. She made the real flowers and the wax ones into a bouquet and presented them to the wise Solomon. Then she asked him if he could tell which were the real flowers.

He saw a bee flying outside, so he went and opened the window, and the bee flew in and lit right on the true clover. Then the queen was satisfied that Solomon was very wise indeed.

WAIST SHOULD BE NORMAL

Correct Corseting Always One of the Most Important Aids to Health and Beauty.

At the root of the ills to which feminine flesh is heir is incorrect corseting and tight lacing. These are by no means synonymous terms. One may be incorrectly yet loosely corseted. Today it is the exceptional woman who laces her corset so tightly that her figure assumes an unnatural contour. Ten years ago many women did. This improvement is to some degree to the credit of the wearers of corsets, but to a still greater degree it is to the credit of corset manufacturers and the mandates of fashion. Women who have just regard for their health and beauty realize that the normal waist measurement is an important adjunct thereto. This is proved by the fact that all ready-made garments are two inches larger around the waist than they were two years ago, which means that most women who used to wear a 22 corset now wear a 24, and so on through the different sizes.

Leading physicians all admit that women require support for the abdomen. Support is entirely different from suppression. If the abdomen is suppressed, a lot of trouble is brought on, the first sign of which is constipation. The colon cannot function properly. More depends upon the colon than most people are aware of, even some physicians. The direct results of restricting the action of the colon are weakness, insomnia and dyspepsia; the indirect results are too numerous to mention and would be superfluous, because the prevailing styles in corsets conform in a great degree to nature's demands.

The wise physician raises his voice against the use but the abuse of the corset. A corset which supports the abdomen will never be condemned by those who are conversant with the structure of the human body, masculine or feminine. More men wear abdominal belts than is dreamed of by the public. Some of the most advanced scientists state that women can wear corsets now which conform to the latest fashion without sacrificing their health.—Harriet Edwards Fayes, in Woman's World.

Cairn of Stones Marking the Summit of the Digermulkollen in Norway.

London.—In the county of Nordland, Norway, on the rocky and precipitous line at about 68 degrees north latitude, the jagged and fantastic peak of the Digermulkollen mountain rears its head some 1,100 feet above the ocean. Its summit, marked by this pile of stones, is reached by a winding, but fairly easily traversed pathway. The view from this point is one of the most striking prospects of the whole Norwegian coast. Near at hand are the peaks of the Higrastind (3,811 feet), Gjelgallartind (3,555 feet), and the Svartsundtind (3,506 feet), while below lie the islands of the Sototen and Vesteraalen, separated by narrow and tortuous channels.

WEDDING AN ARMY MAN.

Doubt thou the stars are fire,
Doubt that the sun doth move,
Doubt truth to be a liar,
But never doubt I love.

Where is the maid who does not admire a flashing eye and the gleam of brass buttons when worn by a well-formed soldier boy?

Girls are in their glory when invited to a military ball. The young army man who dances delightfully has little difficulty in capturing the admiration of a pretty girl and winning her susceptible heart. In her eyes, he seems a hero. She sees a vast difference between him and the other young men she meets.

He is generally an ardent wooer. Many a girl whispers yes under the fascinating spell. The wedding day is set. Such girls often do not stop to think further than the present. She knows vaguely that he is a private and his pay is small while his chance of bettering himself is almost a miracle. She cannot realize the full meaning her friends would convey when they tell her that the life of the wife of a private in the army is a very lonely one. Her husband could not be at her side. He must be at his post, where his duty calls him. She must pass many a dreary night alone. She hasn't the advantages of most married women—her husband cannot be with her, to escort her to places she would like to go.

Winter and summer it is the same story. Where women love they think no sacrifice too great to make. She who is wedded to the soldier boy often comes to the conclusion that nine out of a dozen of them would be better off single. Home life is best upon the army man, who cannot enjoy it. He enters the army ranks in early youth and becomes so used to life in the barracks that other pursuits do not appeal to him.

True, he can spend much of his leisure time in writing to her, but even the most endearing words on paper do not compensate for a husband's protracted absence. If he is ill, she may not be permitted to go and minister to him. Nor if she has a protracted illness is he allowed to come and watch by her side patiently for weeks. His children grow up without knowing much about him. His home coming, are like angels' visits, few and far between. "The sailor's bark the sailor's bride should be." The soldier should be wedded to the army. The sailor and soldier both have hearts which may beat warm with love. Their yearning to wed is as strong as any man's. Ere they marry, they should find out beyond doubt if a girl they would marry would be satisfied and never regret wedding an army man.

Weed Out Your Thoughts.

In wandering through your mental pleasure grounds, whenever you come upon an ugly intruder of a thought which might bloom into some poisonous emotion such as fear, envy, hate, worry, remorse, anger and the like, there is only one right way to treat it. Pull it up like a weed; drop it upon the rubbish heap as promptly as if it were a stinging nettle; and let some harmonious thought grow in its place. There is no more reckless consumer of all kinds of exuberance than the discordant thought, and weeding it out saves such an astonishing amount of eau de vie wherewith to water the garden of joy, that with it in hand every man may be his own Burbank.—Robert H. Schaeffer in the Atlantic.

Children Carry Mother's Ashes.

New York.—Jessie and Lillian Glenday, aged three and six, respectively, sailed aboard the Celtic on the last half of a 6,000-mile journey with their mother's ashes. Mrs. Glenday, who died in Oakland, Cal., wanted to be buried in Scotland. Her husband had the body cremated, placed in an urn and started the children on their journey.

RUNK & PECKMAN'S REALTY REPORT

The population of Gettysburg is increasing faster than the supply of houses. In fact it would be hard to find a vacant house in the entire town. This being the situation, don't you think Gettysburg houses and lots would be a good thing to buy and own. Below we are offering a limited number of good properties at reasonable prices. If you want a nice comfortable home or investment property consult our office list before looking elsewhere.

6-room frame house, slate roof, gas and water, 60 foot lot, 180 feet deep, located on York Street Extended. House in good condition. Price of this property is only $1500.00. You can sell a 30 foot lot and still have a nice home at a very low cost.

Frame double house on West Middle street, 6-rooms and kitchen, one side, and 4-rooms and kitchen on other side. Rents for $11.75 per month, taxes $17.00. Price $1500.00.

9-room up-to-date frame house on Hanover street, hot water heating plant, bath and gas, front and rear porches, lot 40 x 180 feet, a very pleasant home. Price $2800.00.

7-room brick house, slate roof, pantry, bath, gas, large attic, good cellar, front, side and rear porch, cement walks, graded lawn, corner lot, located in West side of town in excellent neighborhood, lot is 45 x 180 feet, large poultry house, practically new property. Price $3500.00.

10-room brick house, corner York and 4th Sts., with bath, hot water heating plant, electric lights, slate roof, front and side porches, garden and chicken house, 90 foot front. Price $4000.00. A fine 40 foot lot can be sold off this property, thus reducing the price of the home materially.

Modern 6-room brick house on Baltimore street, bath, hardwood floors, gas and electric lights, open stairways, steam heat, papered throughout, no garden or stable, hence the low price of $3000.00.

Brick double house corner Carlisle and Water Sts., 10 rooms each side, tin roof, new baths, gas lights. A convenient place for student boarders and lodgers and well located. Price $4000.00.

Brick double house on South Stratton street, 60 foot lot, baths and slate roof, 8 rooms on each side. Especially well built houses and good renters, joins Government land and Kurtz play grounds. Price $3500.00.

8-room frame house, west end of town, nice home with all modern conveniences, such as bath, gas, open fireplace, furnace, etc., $2700.00.

10-room frame building on North Washington street, with Store Room, of 32x180 feet to alley in rear, hot water heat plant, electric lights, front porch, large work shop in rear. Price $4000.00.

10-room brick house on Chambersburg street, 60 foot lot, hardwood finish, gas and electric lights, furnace, bath and large brick stable. A desirable and convenient home. A high priced lot can be sold off this property. Apply for prices and further information.

9-room modern brick house on Baltimore street, slate roof, 65 feet of porch, furnace, bath and gas, bath upstairs and down, frame stable and private alley, 3-room bungalow on rear of lot, plot 66x284 feet. A high class home at a medium price. Apply for prices and particulars.

The Art of Advertising

By DWIGHT NORWOOD

Mr. Broadbri, the proprietor of Broadbri's cleaning powder, gave me a territory to sell it in, sold me a stock on credit, and I located in a small town called Mercerville, in the center of my field of operations. I advertised largely in the country newspapers and canvassed in a buggy, carrying my package of the cleaner on the floor behind the seat. My field of operations was unfortunate, inasmuch as it was already occupied by a cleaner called the Excelsior dirt remover. I couldn't discover that there was any office for the agency of the article in my district. Indeed, the advertisement read that by addressing M. E. Tuttle, box 24, Hammerton postoffice, the remover would be sent for trial. I found myself up against the Excelsior dirt remover continually. When I called to sell Broadbri's cleaning powder I found that they had just received a package of the Excelsior dirt remover for trial, and since the article was satisfactory there was no chance in that family for mine. I concluded to kill competition by means of the newspapers, not by attacking the remover, but by calling attention to my own goods by ingenious advertisements. My first ad. I was well pleased with. It stated that a woman had put a number of soiled clothes to soak on Saturday night and on Monday morning had found them laundered. She was at a loss to understand how this had come about till she noticed that a tear in the paper inclosing Broadbri's cleaning powder on a shelf above the clothes had let out some of the contents, which had fallen in the wash tub.

Every one who met me after seeing my ad. laughed heartily, and I noticed at once an increase of sales. But I soon saw that the Excelsior agent had resolved to fight me on my own ground. The Union County Clarion appeared with this ad:

The contract to remove the dirt from the foundation of the new schoolhouse has been awarded to the Excelsior dirt remover.

Being in for it, I sat down to think of a new way of outwitting the Excelsior folks with the following result:

A farmer, having bought a package of Broadbri's cleaning powder at Mercerville, driving home got stuck in a mudhole. Throwing some of the powder under the wheels of his wagon, the soil was removed down to smooth bedrock, and the wagon wheels shone spick and span in the sun.

How long this war of ads. would have lasted had not my opponent become personal I don't know. The next ad. that appeared was as follows:

The agent of Broadbri's cleaning powder washed his face yesterday, dropping a little of the powder in the water. The basin soon became filled with dirt. It was found that some of the water charged with this cleaning powder had passed through the ears and nostrils and washed out his brain.

Fearing that the campaign would degenerate into mud slinging, I resolved to find the Excelsior agent and gain his consent to a division of the territory. I addressed a note, signed with a fictitious name, to M. E. Tuttle, box 24, Hammerton postoffice, stating that I would like to buy a couple of dozen packages of the Excelsior remover and would call at his office for the purpose if an address were given. This brought the street and number, and I called.

I found a little cottage on a side street. Upon asking for the agent of the remover a young woman about twenty years of age entered the room and asked what she could do for me. I asked her if she was the agent, and she said she was. I told her that I was the person who wished to buy a couple of dozen packages of her Excelsior remover, but feared when I told her why I wanted it she would refuse to sell. She asked what I wanted it for, and I told her that I should use it to remove from that territory the agent of the Excelsior article, as she was interfering seriously with the sale of Broadbri's cleansing powder, which I was handling.

There was a slight quirkling up of the corners of her pretty mouth as she replied that it would require a thousand packages to remove the agent, but if I cared to buy so many she would sell them to me at the wholesale price and with all the discounts she had obtained from the owners. I asked her if the thousand packages were her entire stock and if she would guarantee not to buy any more; also if there would be enough to remove the agent to my office as clerk and advertisement writer.

"Not if you propose to store the Broadbri cleaning powder and the Excelsior remover in the same building," she replied.

"Why not?"

"Together they would eradicate the ground under the building and it would collapse."

When we spoke seriously I learned that she was trying to support an invalid mother by selling the remover, and I took myself off to another field, leaving the one about Mercerville to her. But I paid her $15 a week to write ads. for me and made a fortune out of them.

I didn't feel like keeping all the profit to myself when the girl had produced it by her ingenuity in writing ads. So I offered to divide it with her. She refused to take it as a gift, whereupon I prevailed upon her to do so as my wife.

SILAGE AS A FEED FOR DAIRY CATTLE

[Prepared by the dairy division, United States department of agriculture.] Silage is the main reliance of dairy farmers in many sections for cow feed, since it has been found to be particularly well adapted as feed in this connection. While silage is an excellent feed for dairy stock, it should be combined with some other leguminous feed, such as clover, cowpeas or alfalfa, owing to its insufficient productive quality.

The leguminous material will tend to correct the deficiencies of the silage in dry matter, protein and mineral constituents. A ration of silage and, say, alfalfa hay, alone is satisfactory, however, only for cows which are dry or giving only a small amount of milk and for heifers and bulls. Cows in full milk require some concentrated feed in addition to hay and silage, as they cannot consume enough of these feeds to keep up a large flow of milk and maintain body weight.

The Holstein cow is a fine large animal, giving a big flow of milk, which, however, is not so rich in butter fat as that produced by some other breeds. The dairyman has to handle more milk to produce the same amount of butter than is necessary with the breeds which give a smaller amount in quantity, but larger in butter fat. Then, again, the Holstein, being a large animal, requires and consumes more food than the smaller breeds, but at the same time the great flow of milk compensates for the extra food consumed. For milk production the Holstein excels.

The amount of silage to feed a cow will depend upon the capacity of the animal to consume feed. She should be fed as much as she will clean up without waste when consumed along with her hay and grain. Raise or lower the amount until the proper quantity is ascertained. Generally speaking, a good cow should be fed just short of the limit of her appetite. If she refuses any of her feed it should be reduced at once. The small breeds will eat twenty-five or thirty pounds per day, the large breeds forty or more and the medium sized ones amounts varying between.

Ireland, directions for feeding cows cannot be given. In general, however, they should be supplied with all the roughage they will clean up with grain in proportion to butter fat produced. The hay will ordinarily range between five and twelve pounds per cow per day when fed in connection with silage. For Holsteins one pound of concentrates for each four pounds of milk produced will prove about right. For Jerseys one pound for each three pounds of milk or less will come nearer meeting the requirements. The grain for other breeds will vary between these two according to the quality of milk produced. A good rule is to feed seven times as much grain as there is butter fat produced.

Poor Dairy Economy.

One of the worst things the dairyman can do is to try to economize in the quality of the salt you use in the butter. If you do happen to try in a very short time your customers will remind you that your butter is "getting out of line."

Loyal Irish Father.

It is certain that no immigrant is more loyal to wife and child than the Irishman. Out of nearly ten thousand charity cases in which a wife was the head of the family, the greatest frequency of widowhood, and the least frequency of desertion or separation is among the Irish.—The Century.

Original Suggestion.

A very pretty way of renewing old furniture in a child's room is to paint it with robin's egg blue enamel. When dry stick on underneath each keyhole in drawers of dresser or chiffonier very small pink-tinted designs of roses, cupid (which one finds on old valentines, postals, etc.) and when well stuck on in place give them a light coat of shellac. The effect is very pretty.
